Nairobi's annual Festival of Lights in Uhuru Park drew an estimated 38,000 people over three days, organisers said on Monday, a record attendance that boosted traffic and hotel bookings in the city ahead of a national holiday weekend.

The festival, now in its fourth year, featured 120 stalls selling food and crafts, a 1.5-kilometre lantern parade and a fireworks display that ended just before 10 p.m. Police said there were no major incidents and that crowds dispersed by midnight without incident.

Tourism officials said hotel occupancy in Nairobi rose to 71 percent from 58 percent a week earlier. Airport arrivals in the city's zone averaged 2,140 a day, up from 1,910 in the previous month, according to figures shared by the tourism ministry.

Traders said sales were strongest among visitors from neighbouring countries and among Nairobi residents who had not attended the festival before. Vendors selling grilled maize and beaded jewelry said they had sold out of stock by the second night.

Organisers said ticket revenue covered about 60 percent of the cost, with the rest from sponsorships and vendor fees. They said they plan to charge entry next year and to move the parade to a weekday to reduce traffic on Uhuru Highway.

Kenya Wildlife Conservation Authority rangers patrolled the park on foot and on horseback. The agency said it will review the lantern parade route after complaints from residents about noise near hospitals and schools.

Mombasa's Kenyatta Beach drew an estimated 22,000 people on Saturday for the city's annual Festival of Lights, organisers said, with vendors selling grilled fish and beaded jewelry along the sand until late in the evening.

Police said there were no major incidents and that crowds dispersed by midnight. Traffic was heavy on the Nyali Bridge and on the coastal road, officials said, with delays of up to 40 minutes reported during the parade.

Hotel occupancy in Mombasa rose to 71 percent from 58 percent a week earlier, tourism officials said, with bookings from domestic travelers accounting for roughly two-thirds of the increase.

Looking for a forever family for a pair of bonded partridge cochin baby hens. The eggs were sexed. Guaranteed female. The chicks were born May 30th and have been hand raised to help them become accustomed to people. They received both the coccidiosis and marek's disease vaccinations. According to popular breeds of domestic poultry published in 1923, the breed was developed in the providence of Shantung, north of Shanghai in China. Cochins were called Jun-Chin there, meaning 9 picules, referring to their size. A picule is equal to 1/4 lbs. Importation records for cochins to the U.S. Go back to 1864, but there is a good chance they were brought over even earlier. These birds mature slowly, but are very hardy. When fully grown, they weigh around 8.5 lbs and have feathers extending down to their feet. Cochins are very sweet and docile birds and are good egg producers, laying

LAYING AROUND 4-6 BROWN MEDIUM-SIZED EGGS A WEEK. SINCE THEY ARE A HEAVILY FEATHERED BIRD TYPE, COCHINS SUFFER IN EXCESSIVE HEAT, SO CARE SHOULD BE TAKEN TO ENSURE THEY ALWAYS HAVE ACCESS TO SHADE AND CLEAN WATER. FOR OPTIMUM HEALTH, THEY SHOULD HAVE SOME GREENS DAILY. ¶ I HAVE SOME BEAUTIFUL, HEALTHY, ORGANICALLY FED LAYING HENS AVAILABLE. ALL OF MY BIRDS ARE IN EXCELLENT CONDI-TION AND HAVE BEEN WELL SOCIALIZED WITH PEOPLE AND OTHER CHICKENS. I HAVE HENS THAT ARE CURRENTLY LAYING EGGS 10-14 MONTHS OLD FOR $50 EACH AND PULLETS THAT ARE JUST BEGINNING TO LAY OR WILL START WITHIN 30 DAYS. 4-5 MONTH OLDS FOR $35 EACH. I GUARANTEE THE SEX AND HEALTH OF MY BIRDS. YOUR SATISFACTION
